McCain Files Senate Bill in Support of H.R. 1410 after Indian Affairs Committee Hearing

Mikhail Sundust/GRIN

From left, Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community President Diane Enos, Glendale Mayor Jerry Weiers and Tohono O’odham Nation Chairman Ned Norris, Jr. share a panel before the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs at an oversight hearing July 23. The three officials testified on their unique positions in regard to the proposed Tohono O’odham Glendale casino. Enos and Weiers support an effort to push legislation known as H.R. 1410 - “Keep the Promise Act,” which would effectively block the casino, through Congress. Five days after the hearing, Sens. John McCain and Jeff Flake of Arizona announced that they would introduce a Senate bill to complement this effort.

WASHINGTON, D.C. – In response to a surge of support for H.R. 1410, U.S. Sens. John McCain and Jeff Flake of Arizona on Monday announced a Senate companion bill that would block any new Indian casinos in the Phoenix-metropolitan area.

In the statement, the senators said, “We share the objections of many fellow Arizonans when we see attempts to bring Indian gaming to metropolitan areas that are on lands not connected to an extant reservation.”

Five days earlier, on July 23, the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs held an oversight hearing titled “Tribal Gaming: The Next 25 Years,” an allusion to the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act of 1988, which established federal regulations on tribal gaming.

The hearing attempted to focus on the benefits and barriers of Indian gaming throughout the country and how those testimonies may or may not affect the future of tribal gaming. But with so many Arizonans in the room that day, discussions repeatedly turned to the topic of off-reservation gaming and, specifically, the Tohono O’odham Nation’s proposed Glendale casino.

Advocates of H.R. 1410 packed into a small hearing room last week in Washington, D.C., filling it to capacity and leaving no room for doubt that the idea of upholding the promises of the tribal-state gaming compact and keeping casinos out of Phoenix area cities carries a wealth of support in Arizona.

More than an hour before the hearing, representatives from the Gila River Indian Community, Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community, Quechan Tribe, Hualapai Tribe and the cities of Apache Junction, Mesa, Scottsdale and Glendale showed up in full force to support H.R. 1410 at the Dirksen Senate Office Building, filling the corridor outside room 628 with a queue stretching nearly the length of the building. As they filed in, it slowly became apparent that almost no room remained for opponents of the bill.

The tactic had its desired effect: for the Committee to witness the magnitude of the proposed legislation, which has broad support from a majority of Arizona tribes, an array of Phoenix area municipalities, Gov. Jan Brewer, Congressmen Trent Franks and Paul Gosar and most of the state legislature.

Residential Programs for Youth Unveils Impressive New Facility

By Christopher Lomahquahu
Communications & Public Affairs Office

In the Community, preparations are being made for the youth in the care of the Residential Programs for Youth. The new RPY facility is on the cusp of opening its doors, to serve as a new place of residence for children in the present youth home. Recently, Governor Mendoza and other GRIC dignitaries toured the 47,000-plus square foot facility, near sprawling farmland in Sacaton.

The new facility offers so much more in the way of comforts than its predecessor. Mendoza was impressed at what he has seen thus far. Kimberly Herman, the Director of RPY, recalls when Governor asked her the question, “Have you ever seen anything like this?” Her answer was, “No, I’ve never seen anything like this in Indian Country, Arizona, or elsewhere. The new facility is on the forefront of technology.”

Herman, in her three year tenure with the Community, started out as a case manager and was promoted to the Family Services supervisor position at Tribal Social Services then served as the acting RPY administrator.

As the RPY administrator, overseeing the transition from the current RPY facility to the new facility is high on the priority list. “I definitely was sharing in the excitement and enthusiasm of the new building,” Herman said. “However, coming on board as the new administrator, what I’ve tried to impress upon the staff is, let’s not rush into this new building, there were a lot of changes that needed to be implemented.”

Creative thinking was instrumental in the assessment of what services needed improvement, provided the new facility may present new challenges.

“We needed to think as if we were in this building and we needed to assess what we need to improve upon in terms of our capabilities,” said Herman. Among the changes included more training for the staff, more therapeutic approaches for the children, and partnering with other Community departments to provide other services.

Part of this process included revising the policies and procedures to meet the level of the new

Setting the record straight on the West Valley casino

Lost in this week's headlines about the Glendale City Council's 4-3 vote to no longer oppose the Tohono O'odham Nation's neighborhood casino are some critical points about what this new casino could mean for Valley neighborhoods and for the Nation's sister tribes. At the risk of injecting a dose of fact and reality into the Nation's overheated rhetoric about soaring tax revenues and "West Valley opportunity," allow me to set the record straight.

First and foremost, while to date the Nation's leaders' public statements have focused on building a casino near 91st Avenue and Northern, in recent legal filings and depositions attorneys for the Nation have argued that the Tohono O'odham have the right to build not just one Phoenix-area casino, but four such properties.

Of course, such an assertion again flies in the face of the Nation's promises to its sister tribes and to the voters of Arizona during the 2002 statewide campaign to approve the tribal gaming compacts. Then, the Nation portrayed itself as a southern Arizona tribe happy to dominate the Tucson area with its casinos. Little did anyone know that the tribe was already shopping for land in Glendale using a dummy corporation headquartered in Delaware. That same scenario — land purchased anonymously and held for exactly the right moment — already likely has happened again here in Maricopa County. Given the literally hundreds of county islands dotting the Valley, there's no telling where Tohono O'odham is likely to site its next three casinos.

Nor has the Nation volunteered such information. In fact, Tohono O'odham's leadership has pointedly refused to reveal the tribe's landholdings in court, to neighboring governments, or to any inquiring parties.

Such subterfuge and duplicity has played an enormous role in the Gila River Indian Community's years-long opposition to the Nation's casino and in the opposition voiced by the majority of Arizona Indian tribes and other tribes nationally. Since its earliest days, tribal gaming in Arizona has been predicated on striking a careful balance — one that allows all tribal economies and Arizona communities to benefit, while restricting gambling to traditional tribal lands. Though the Nation argues that they've played by the rules, the truth is they are exploiting loopholes that only exist because its leaders and attorneys mislead other negotiating parties about its true intentions. Through bad faith negotiations the Tohono O'odham Nation has unilaterally changed the rules mid-game, in a way that could invalidate the voter-approved gaming compacts and open the door to Las Vegas-style casinos in multiple neighborhoods.

The possibility of unfettered gaming has created an enormous backlash to the Nation's casino, birthing a coalition that includes Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer, nearly the entire state congressional delegation, mayors across the region, and Gila River and more than a dozen tribal communities in Arizona and nationally. Also opposed to the project: More than 10,000 Glendale residents who signed petitions asking to put the issue on the ballot in November — a request denied by the city of Glendale on procedural grounds. Indeed, while the Nation portrays the recent Glendale vote as an enormous victory, it ignores the two lawsuits still outstanding against the casino and the need to secure permission from U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs to game on the Glendale land.

The Nation also continues to gloss over H.R. 1410, a congressional bill put forth by a bipartisan coalition of Arizona representatives. That bill, written to preserve tribes' 2002 campaign promise to prevent Las Vegas-style gambling in neighborhoods, passed the U.S. House in a landslide voice vote and is awaiting action in the Senate.

As the leader of a community that has faced its own hard times, I'm sympathetic to the four Glendale Council members who so desperately want to believe the Nation's promises of riches. Given Glendale's financial woes, it must be powerfully tempting to believe salesmen and lawyers offering an easy way out. All I can say is, get those promises in writing. Our tribe took the Nation's leaders at their word for many years, only to find out that their promises were accompanied by secret land deals, broken vows and years of expensive legal mumbo jumbo.

For the Valley's sake, let's hope that Glendale's bet on sudden riches does not turn out to expose three more neighborhoods to gambling gone out of control.

facility. "Most importantly was revising the policy and procedures... It is much more cohesive, because it really speaks about everything that will be done at the new facility," said Herman.

Equally important is thinking of the residential youths that will be making the move. "The youths are anxious about the move, we want to pay extra close attention to what their needs are with the transition; we want to adhere to them and respond to them," said Herman. "We have to think of the children first and transition in the right way."

"With numerous features like cottage-style homes with a kitchen, the technology that exists in this building, it is unprecedented...It's really state of the art. It's unbelievable," said Herman as she lauded the many amenities the new facility will offer. These features add to the learning atmosphere for the children as they are able to exercise their inner talents and prepare for a variety of educational endeavors.

Plans for the new facility include attaining accreditation from the state of Arizona to become a licensed Behavioral Health Residential Facility that will provide reimbursable behavioral and mental health services. One idea envisioned by the RPY administrator is to see the new facility benefit other children, that it may be a "safe haven" for residents removed from unsafe environments of other tribal Communities.

For those teens making their transition out of the RPY program, there are plans that will help prepare them for the future. One of the things anticipated for the new facility is the addition of two new homes that will serve as a transitional living facility, where teens over 17 will be able to learn important life skills.

"Safety is number one," said Herman. "That is our mission to keep them safe and protect them from harm by creating a sense of home."

New Lone Butte Chevron Store Opens for Business

By Mikhail Sundust
Gila River Indian News

The new Lone Butte Chevron Store opened its doors last month with an outpouring of support from local patrons.

At the grand opening July 18, a stream of customers flowed through the new marketplace, which sits cater-corner from the Lone Butte Casino on Kyrene Road just south of the Loop 202. They enjoyed free food, entertainment and ticket giveaways to Diamondbacks games and met local radio hosts from KNIX and Arizona Sports 98.7 FM.

The new convenience store “offers patrons a large walk-in beer cave, a convenient drive-thru window for quick service, Chevron gas, and a dedicated tobacco room, offering the lowest priced and largest selection of tobacco,” said the store owners in a written announcement.

The Lone Butte Chevron Store is co-owned by David Montiel and Sterling Thomas, tribal Vehicles stream in and out of the brand new Lone Butte Chevron Store at its grand opening July 18. The new store is on Kyrene Road, just south of the Loop 202 highway, cater-corner from the Lone Butte Casino. The tribal member-owned store boasts a walk-in beer cave, a drive-through window, a tobacco room and design inspired by traditional O’otham roundhouses.

members from the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community and the Gila River Indian Community, respectively.

The two go way back. Thomas began working for Montiel at another convenience store when he was 18 years old and over the past 18 years he has ascended the ranks from security guard/doorman to manager/business owner.

The duo is not just in the business of offering quick, convenient service to customers on the go; they are also intent on growing a new crop of future tribal business owners, just like Montiel did with Thomas. Like other stores that Montiel owns, Lone Butte boasts over 95 percent tribal employment, drawing primarily from the well of available workers in Salt River and Gila River.

Visitors to the new Lone Butte store will be pleasantly surprised at the design, which took cultural cues from the O’otham into consideration.

The front of the store presents a basket weave design while an indigenous plant palette surrounds the circular design of the store, which is meant to represent a traditional O’otham Olas Ki, or roundhouse.

“The store’s iconic architecture was the creation of the design/build team Architekton and Cochise Contractors,” noted Kimberly Lewis, the owners’ representative. They’re the same team that worked on the Wild Horse Pass Chevron store and Komatke Market.

The site is five acres and saves room for future expansion plans, which may include a car wash and quick service restaurant, according to Lewis.

Montiel and Thomas “feel proud and privileged to be a part of the tribe’s local economy by creating new tribal jobs, generating new tribal tax revenue and serving as a economic catalyst,” with their new store, they said in their announcement.

Montiel, who now owns two stores in Salt River and two in Gila River, started small.

“They started in the triple-wide [trailer] store,” on Allison and Maricopa Roads, said Lewis. The Lone Butte Trade Center, as it’s called, sits across the street from the old Lone Butte Casino building and has been the go-to tobacco shop of the Lone Butte area since 1996.

Montiel has said for loyal patrons worried about their trusty little smoke shop, the Lone Butte Trade Center will remain open in addition to the new Chevron Store. “Since opening for business, [it] has [generated] millions of dollars in tribal tax revenue and land lease payments to the Gila River Indian Community.”

Lewis said the two strategically positioned their new store at the “northern gateway” of the Lone Butte Development Park to be on the forefront of what they expect to be a new swell of economic growth in Gila River.

With this idea in mind, the two decided to expand their operation. “The opportunity came about when the Lone Butte Development Corporation [opened up] more land. There was an opportunity for other tenants to lease additional sites within the park,” said Lewis.

The Community worked alongside Montiel and Lewis to get the new store open.

“When we talked about Community support, what we’re really speaking of is how Lone Butte Development Corporation, the board, made a strategic decision to invest over a million dollars in expanding Kyrene Road farther south,” said Lewis. “It was just going to be a dirt road [but] they were really working hand-in-hand with David and Sterling,” to get their business development plan off the ground. Eventually, Kyrene may loop into Sundust Road, opening up “new opportunities for businesses to locate within the park.”

COMMUNITY UPDATES BY GRIN STAFF

Here are some regular updates on the on-going issues pertaining to the Gila River Indian Community.

H.R. 1410 Hearing

The bill known as the “Keep the Promise Act” is aimed at maintaining the status quo on Indian gaming in Arizona by upholding a promise made to Arizona voters in the 2002 campaign for the Arizona state-tribal gaming compact that in exchange for exclusive rights to own casinos, tribes would limit the number of casinos in the Phoenix-metropolitan area. In effect, it doesn’t change anything in Indian gaming law in Arizona.

President Diane Enos of Salt River said in her testimony before the SCIA, “The ‘Keep the Promise Act’ simply conforms tribal behavior to tribal promises. It doesn’t change Indian gaming. It doesn’t create precedent. And it doesn’t amend the Gila Bend [Lands Replacement] Act. It protects Arizona Indian gaming.”

Enos shared a panel with Glendale Mayor Jerry Weiers and Chairman Ned Norris, Jr. of the Tohono O’odham Nation. All three testified before the SCIA and its chairman, Sen. Jon Tester (D-Mont.).

The debate over the Glendale casino goes back more than five years.

“Like many Glendale residents, I was blind-sided when the Tohono O’odham Nation... announced in January 2009 that it was going to create a reservation and build a Las Vegas-style casino on a 54 acre county island within our city limits,” said Mayor Weiers. “This announcement came seven years after voters approved the ballot initiative that we thought prohibited new casinos in the area.”

Weiers referred Arizona’s tribal-state gaming compact, which was negotiated between 1999 and 2002. The vote and campaign for the new tribal-state agreement was known as Prop. 202. It was approved by Arizona voters in 2002 by a slight majority of 50.9 percent.

“One key aspect of the initiative was that there would be no additional casinos in the Phoenix area,” said Weiers, who was at the time a state legislator in support of the compact.

The Arizona gaming compact is the result of 17 Arizona tribes working together to create a unified state-tribal gaming compact. One of those tribes, the Tohono O’odham Nation, was, as Pres. Enos put it, “working behind our backs and behind the backs of Arizona voters the entire time.”

“Documents recently disclosed by Tohono reveal that they were acting secretly to buy casino land in metro-Phoenix as early as March 2001 – a full year and a half before voters approved the compact and at the very same time that tribes in the state were promising voters that there would be no additional casinos in the Phoenix-metro area.

“They made a calculated choice to keep their plans secret for years from other tribes and to violate our promise to voters. They looked us in the face and lied. They broke faith with us and the voters of Arizona.”

“The deceit did not stop there,” said Weiers. “T.O. had already purchased its Glendale land when a school district announced plans to build a new...high school just across the street. T.O. watched us build a high school while continuing to keep its plans a secret and said nothing. We never thought our children would be across the street from a Las Vegas-style casino.”

The Gila Bend Lands Replacement Act of 1986, a law that Sen. McCain co-authored, gave the Nation the right to buy land in any of the three Arizona counties neighboring the Nation, including Maricopa County. The Nation used that settlement claim to purchase a parcel of land in Glendale with the intention of building a casino on it. They used a shell company called Rainier Resources, based out of Delaware to buy and hold the land before announcing its true ownership in 2009.

Recently, the Department of the Interior took that land into trust, meaning it is now a part of the Tohono O’odham Nation’s reservation. It does not mean, however, that they can start gaming on the land. The Nation still faces litigation in regards to the land use and they must seek approval from the DOI to clear it as eligible for gaming.

Also last month, the Glendale city council reversed its position of dissent on the casino issue, a position it held for nearly five years, when one member changed his vote.

When Sen. Tester asked Norris about the claims of deceit and bad faith, Norris responded, “We’re not here to re-litigate,” and said the U.S. District Court sided with them on a number of counts.

Enos responded quickly, however, noting, “Contrary to what Chairman Norris has asserted, the court had to dismiss the charges that the state of Arizona filed against Tohono O’odham of fraud, misrepresentation and promissory estoppel because they raised sovereign immunity defense.”

At one point during her testimony, Enos said, “With me today, are over 25 elected officials from tribes and Phoenix-metro cities,” said Enos during her testimony, inducing all of the state and tribal leaders to stand up in the hearing room and show their support.

Among the representatives were Virgil Smith, a council member from the Quechan Tribe and Chairwoman Sherry Counts of the Hualapai Tribe. They say that allowing the Glendale casino to be built, not only affects the Phoenix area tribes but all the rural tribes, such as their own, that contract with tribes such as Gila River, Salt River, Ak-Chin and Fort McDowell. If those tribes take a financial hit, so will the rural tribes who depend on the revenue they gather through contracts they share with Phoenix area tribes.

Smith and Counts didn’t get to testify before the Committee, but they let their opinions be heard during a gathering the morning of the hearing.

“It impacts us significantly due to the amount of money that we receive every year,” said Counts. She said losing the money “could really significantly impact our budget and the things that we do for the people.”

SOMETHING TO BE TOLD OR TALKED ABOUT

As much as we do welcome the rain of Shopol Es'big Mashath ("short planting month" – August) some people still complain about the heat and humidity. (I think I've even been heard muttering now and then.) What better excuse to stay inside and watch old movies?

In my childhood, movies were called veggi. Rapid flashes on the screen probably reminded our great grandparents of lightning. Veggi also meant electricity. Whatever a movie was called it seemed most O'otham and Pipaash enjoyed them. An elder told me old timers liked westerns and when a horse chase was shown, many of the men would lean to the right and left, front and back as if they were riding! (Who needs an Xbox?) In another incident, a Native family was excited to go see another western but "Frankenstein" was not what they expected.

I have another excuse to justify my movie mania – I'm researching Native Americans in movies. Burdette Morago shared some of his family history with me. One of his relatives, Louis Morago, wore quite a few hats. After graduating from the University of Arizona in 1929, he worked for the community and the BIA. Along with George Truman Jones, he helped write the first constitution for the Gila River Indian Community. Louis became a teacher and had a lengthy career in school administration in the Los Angeles area. He was also a stand-in for Jay Silverheels who played Tonto in "The Lone Ranger" television series.

Another relative, Louis's sister Edith, worked as an extra in the movies. She knew all the western stars of the era, and she would sometimes host dinners with popovers being a big draw. Gary Cooper was a big fan of these get-togethers. When Burdette was pitching for the University of Arizona Wildcats and playing in the Los Angeles area, Louis would pick up Burdette and drive over to Edith's home for dinner. Burdette recalls a room full of movie memorabilia from her career. To this day, Burdette can sometimes see her as an extra in certain movies, most recently in "Across the Wide Missouri."

"Tell Them Willie Boy is Here," which was released in 1969 and starred Robert Redford, Katharine Ross, and Robert Blake, is based on a historical incident. A Gila River resident who has relatives in the Palm Springs, California area says that there is still debate about the true story of Willie Boy. There are several books about Willie Boy and those stories vary quite a bit.

Willie Boy was a Paiute/Chemehuevi, who in 1909 was accused of killing his girlfriend's father—but was it actually in self-defense? Willie Boy and his girlfriend, Carlota, go on the run. Carlota is killed – by the posse, by Willie Boy, or was it sacrificial suicide to let Willie Boy escape? Willie Boy outruns the posse, but is eventually found, gunfire is exchanged and Willie Boy is found dead, but was it "suicide by cop?" Willie Boy's body was burned. By the posse, or by tribal members? Lots of questions. It is a fact that a monument for Willie Boy exists at Ruby Mountain.

The "Outsider," filmed in our community in 1961, is better known as the Ira Hayes story and stars Tony Curtis, in brown face! Scenes of the old Bapchule Traders store/post office, the original wooden tribal building in Sacaton and Ira's home bring back memories. I believe our people are natural born actors, for the scene when the people are shown with jackets, standing around a fire, waiting for election results, was filmed in late spring when it was already very warm. The Gila River Indian News ran an excellent article in October 2010 when Tony Curtis died. A picture of Ira's parents was shown and two GRIC members gave their memories of the time.

What better excuse to stay inside and watch these movies—before the grandkids come home? But it's too hot, too humid for popcorn.

Youth, Counselors and Facilitators gather amongst the pines of Mingus Mountain at Indian Nations Camp 2014.

Gila River Indian News

During my time at Indian Nations Camp I saw pine trees as tall as sky scrapers, the atmosphere was humid, raindrops as tough and sharp as nails fell and tremendous thunder rippled vibrations through the ground. Being in Prescott Valley at Mingus Mountain, and being able to witness nature at its finest was truly breathtaking.

The summer youth WIA participants ventured out for a week from July 14-18 at Indian Nations Camp. It's been a tradition, making this year their 13th annual INC. This exhilarating and adventurous camp is made possible by Librado Ramirez, the director, and Lana Chanda, the co-director.

Honestly I can't begin to explain to you how appreciative I was to have the opportunity to attend and how happy I am that I took the chance. I had the greatest time, especially with Ramirez's goofy rules.

"If I catch you talking while I'm talking, be prepared to sing a song in front of everyone for breakfast, lunch or dinner... Make sure to put a hop in your step while you're up there too," Ramirez would say. People's performances were hysterical and brought a laugh out of us all, which put everyone in a more joyful mood.

There were kids from Gila River, Salt River, Hualapai, San Carlos, White Mountain, Colorado River, Fort Mojave and Hopi all resulting in over 80 attendants. Throughout the week there were numerous workshops, talking circles around the campfire, activities during free time, a talent show, and even a dance. The workshops focused on drugs and alcohol prevention, health, communication, suicide prevention, careers, and the Native American culture. These workshops were very informative and I loved how the advisors made the atmosphere feel very open for us to ask any questions.

The workshop that I enjoyed the most focused on our culture as Native Americans. I've always enjoyed learning about the Native American culture. My favorite part of the workshop was when James Tree, one of the advisors, demonstrated a traditional hoop dance that told a story because he described what the movements meant as he was going through it. It was really fascinating.

When you go camping, you learn to cherish the little things such as electricity, your bed and a bathroom to yourself. During our free time, we played sports, watched movies, made arts and crafts, and even went to a labyrinth in the woods.

At every peak of the morning and every drawing of the night Ramirez and Chanda would have us gather around the camp fire and relieve any emotional distress or discuss any joy and comfort that was felt throughout the day.

Overall, attending the Indian Nations camp was incredibly life altering for me. It was an extraordinary experience to connect with other Native Americans from different areas on such an emotional and intellectual level, to relieve worries and troubles and to notice that I'm not the only one facing these kinds of teen troubles brought my heart great relief.

I met some pretty remarkable and kind hearted people, people that I had no idea were in my community. "INC is very inspirational for the youth. They get a chance to get a piece of one another's culture and allows them to come together because they're all Native youth," said Elisia Manuel, WIA outreach coordinator.

Stepping back and looking at how I entered the camp not knowing anyone at all, and five days later leaving as a family was something really phenomenal. This doesn't even begin to truly explain how grand of an experience it was, it's honestly something you have to go through for yourself to grasp the complete depth of the experience. It was one of the greatest things I've ever experienced in life. I can't wait to go back next year!

Hometown Hero Talks About Award and Desire to Help Others

By Christopher Lomahquahu
Communications & Public Affairs Office

In the previous issue of the GRIN, Gila River EMT Chris Holsinger was featured for winning the Fulton Homes and KM-LE-FM (107.9) "Hometown Heroes" award.

The "Hometown Heroes" award recognizes members of the armed forces, law enforcement, and public safety. Additional requirements include being a positive role model and demonstrating leadership qualities in their community.

It was a happy occasion for Holsinger as he and his wife Joy talked about the prestigious award. Holsinger was humble and acknowledged that it is not an award he carries alone. Joy submitted a letter to KMLE "Hometown Hero" program and nominated her husband who was picked out of five finalists of the 2,000 nominations.

Holsinger said that his life of service is his calling. "You learn to work towards what you want, we try to do our best," he said of the level of commitment shared by him and his co-workers. "If you do your job and you love the people that you work for, the job will be much more rewarding."

Holsinger's values are traced back to his parents. "You had to work hard," he said, recalling values he learned growing up.

It is apparent Holsinger has a lot to do with influencing the career choices of his children. His daughter Christina went to firefighter school for two years and his daughter Rebecca plans to go to school to be a nurse.

Holsinger remains a role model to other young people in his life. "He's guided a couple of kids that he talked to about career choices, one teen plans to join the Marines, and the other will be joining ROTC in high school," said Joy.

Holsinger takes a unique approach to relieving the stress of the job and responsibilities as a collegiate umpire. "That's my stress reliever," he said. "The funny part is people laugh, because being an umpire at a junior collegiate level is stressful...I consider it my stress reliever because of the unfortunate stuff that we have to see on the job. It gives me a different approach to handling stress."

Christopher Lomahquahu/CPAO

As the husband of a cancer survivor, Holsinger recalls the moment when his wife Joy received her diagnosis of uterine cancer. "It was stunning. Shock, and anger. We were wondering, what happened?" At that moment he also remembers talking to the doctor asking, "What is it going to take to treat her?"

Joy remembers how much it was a blessing to have her husband by her side. "It was very helpful, it was hard, he looked up at the doctor and asked what do we need to do to save her?"

These experiences prepared Holsinger with the initiative to help those in need. In Gila River it takes a unique set of communication skills to overcome barriers. He sees the need to communicate with Community members an essential part of the treatment process when on the scene.

To reinforce what it means to serve the Community, Holsinger recites the message written on the Gila River EMS ambulances "A care for the Community," summarizing, "That is exactly what we (EMS) are trying to do."

“MASHCHAMA HA JENIKTHA”

Sacaton Elementary School District Child Find Process

Vechij Himdag Mashchamakud Announces AZ FIND Efforts

Submitted by Dr. DiAnne Davidsen, Director of Special Education
Sacaton Elementary School District

Federal law requires that all school districts have a “Child Find” procedure in place. The purpose is to search out and find children who may have a disability.

All school age children are screened within the first 45 days after enrollment at a school by their respective classroom teachers if in Kindergarten or are new to the campus. The 45-Day Screening information is filed in their Cumulative Files kept at each campus or if the child is suspected of having a disability, their screening form is forwarded to the Director of Special Education or School Counselor. Follow-up communication with the parents/guardians will take place. If necessary, a Child Study Team meeting will be held with the parents/guardians as members of that team to discuss further options that may be put in place for the educational success of the child.

At any time throughout the year, parents and school district staff may refer a child for screening if they suspect a disability. It is a very simple process — contact Dr. DiAnne Davidsen in the Special Education Office located on the Sacaton Middle School campus, room C-7, at (520) 562-8600 x 2030. We will then begin the process of working with the child and their parent after the referral. Any person may refer a child who they suspect has a disability.

Preschool Children (birth-5) are screened through events that occur in the Gila River Indian Community such as Child Find/Kid Fest. The Sacaton Child Find/Kid Fest is held annually in September at Sacaton Elementary School. Other districts have theirs scheduled throughout the year. Sacaton Elementary School District conducts their Child Find activities for D-3, D-4, and D-5. Gila River Indian Community Early Childhood Special Services holds Child Find activities in all districts throughout the year or can receive referrals at any time from parents.

No matter the age of the child, (birth to 21), or the suspected disability, the Special Education Office is required to take the referral and act as liaison to help the parent/guardian contact the appropriate agency for screening and/or support.

It takes everyone working together to support the educational needs of the children and youth of the Gila River Indian Community. We look forward to working with you.

Vechij Himdag Alternative Mashchamakud offers comprehensive special education services/referrals to eligible students ages three through 21 years and to children from birth through age 21 years who have a suspected disability.

Children from birth to age three with other disabilities will be referred to appropriate agencies for services. All referrals are considered confidential, and services are provided at no cost. The parent, legal guardian, or surrogate parent retains the right to refuse services and are provided other procedural safeguards under federal and state law.

Public school services include screening in areas of suspected disabilities, such as vision, hearing, motor skills, speech, language, cognitive, academic and/or social emotional development. Evaluations in the schools are provided for several areas of suspected disabilities, including learning disabilities, speech and language development, physical impairments, vision or hearing problems, mental retardation, emotional disturbances, autism/pervasive developmental disorders, health impairments, developmental disabilities or traumatic brain injuries.

A free appropriate public education with a full continuum of services is available for eligible children with disabilities. For more information concerning eligibility criteria and referral procedures, contact the principal or counselor of your local school or call Kim Franklin at Vechij Himdag Mashchamakud 520.562.3286

FIND • HELP • SUCCEED

Helping All Children Succeed

Do you have concerns about your child's development or progress in school?

What is Child Find?
Child Find is a component of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act of 2004 (IDEA '04) that requires states to locate, identify, and evaluate all children with disabilities, ages birth through 21 years, who are in need of early intervention or special education services. This includes children who are highly mobile, such as migrant or homeless children, children suspected of having a disability even though they are advancing from grade to grade, private school students, and homeschool students. The Arizona initiative for child find is referred to as AZ FIND.

Developmental and Educational Services for Children Ages Birth through 21 Years
Some children have more difficulty learning than others. They may have trouble achieving milestones in one or more of the following developmental or academic areas:

- Vision and Hearing
- Motor Control or Coordination
- Behavior or Social Skills
- Speech or Communication Skills
- Cognitive or Academic Skills

A referral for early intervention or special education services can come from a parent, guardian, foster parent, family member, teacher, counselor, or the student who finds learning difficult. The earlier you express your concerns, the sooner your child's needs will be identified and the sooner he or she will receive the help needed to succeed.

Help for Infants and Toddlers
Children ages birth to 2 years 10 1/2 months are screened through the Arizona Early Intervention Program (AzEIP) to determine if early intervention services are needed. Early intervention brings professionals, working in partnership with parents and families of children with special needs, together to support infants' or toddlers' growth, development, and learning. If you have questions about your child's development, an AzEIP specialist will talk with you about your concerns and observe your child. If your child is found eligible, a plan will be designed to include strategies, activities, and supports to achieve desired outcomes related to your child's needs. Make an online referral at www.azed.gov/azeip. For more information, call 1-888-439-5609 or (602) 532-9960.

Help for Preschool and School-Aged Children
Your local school district, or the charter school your child attends (for school-aged children), screens children ages 2 years 10 1/2 months through 21 years. Public schools use an informal screening process to check your child's development and academic progress.

- Screening must be completed within 45 calendar days of the date you notify the school of your concerns.
- When a concern is identified through screening procedures, you must be notified within 10 school days and informed of procedures to follow up on your child's needs. For example:
 - o Your child may be referred to the school's child study team for pre-intervention services; or,
 - o If screening results indicate your child may have a disability, a comprehensive evaluation will be necessary to your child's determine eligibility for special education and related services. A team, of which you will be a member, will meet to begin the process.

Screening and evaluation are free. All information contained in the screening or evaluation is confidential.

Contact your local school district or the charter school your child attends. For children attending private schools, contact the principal at the school district in which the private school is located.

Be Involved!
Family engagement has a positive influence on your child's academic success and emotional development.

- Set high expectations and establish goals.
- Communicate frequently with teachers to monitor your child's achievements.
- Ask for ideas and materials to help your child learn at home.
- Reward progress and celebrate accomplishments.
- Volunteer for classroom and schoolwide activities.
- Attend community events and workshops that promote learning and social growth.

Hualapai has 2,300 enrolled members and uses its gaming revenue to support “our youth, we help them get clothing for school, and then our elderly, we give them money to provide them with utility assistance, repairs on their house, wood for the winter, that kind of stuff.” They also “use the money for education to support our higher education people.”

Meanwhile at Quechan, Smith said, “A lot of our revenue that we get from casinos goes towards our government. It funds our education for our children, to our elderly, our social services program, everything, basically.”

He said if tribal “gaming exclusivity [were to] go away, that would have a deep impact on Quechan. All the other tribes would have it too but we’re a rural tribe...so a lot of the stuff that we have [is] because of gaming.”

He said he feels sad to see the discord this issue has sown but he and his fellow representatives traveled all the way to D.C. “to show that we are fully aware of the impacts that it’s going to have for all the tribes...not just do a letter of support or anything like that, but actually be here and be standing with everyone.”

After the hearing, all eyes were on Sen. McCain, who is a member and former chairman of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs. Sen. Tester said the Committee would be looking to McCain for his insight on the matter due to his experience with Indian gaming and the fact that the issue at hand is in his home state.

Until recently, McCain has refrained from getting too involved in the issue and remarked at the hearing that he would prefer a mutually amicable conclusion on the matter. But the announcement of his and Flake’s new bill signals that he is ready to help put an end the debate through Congressional action.

“As one of the authors (Senator McCain) of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act and the Gila Bend Indian Reservation Replacement Lands Act, Congress did not envision Indian gaming on the kinds of lands involved in the West Valley issue,” the senators’ statement reads.

To watch the full hearing visit: <http://www.indian.senate.gov/hearing/oversight-hearing-indian-gaming-next-25-years>. The Enos/Weiers/Norris panel begins around the 1:50:00 minute mark. Reps. Paul Gosar and Raúl Grijalva also speak on the issue from minutes 20 to 31.

Gila River Indian Community Multimodal Pedestrian Safety Study Open House

The Gila River Indian Community, in collaboration with the Arizona Department of Transportation (ADOT) Multimodal Planning Division (MPD) is developing the Multimodal Pedestrian Safety Plan funded through MPD's Planning Assistance for Rural Areas (PARA) program. The plan will provide multimodal pedestrian-related improvement recommendations to be considered in the short, mid and long-term timeframes.

Your input and review on recommended pedestrian safety and transportation improvements to address these issues that you identified from the mobile and stakeholder outreach events is critical for the safety and mobility of pedestrians on the Gila River Indian Community.

Stop by at one of the two open house sites listed below on Tuesday, August 5, 2014, to learn more about the recommendations and to provide your feedback on the proposed improvements. Your input is valuable to finalizing the study.

Before You Dig!

One simple call to 811 gets underground utility-owned lines marked for FREE.

- Whether you're a homeowner or professional excavator, every digging job requires a call -- even small projects -- so be sure to:
- Call 811 at least two days before starting any digging project
 - Wait for the site to be marked
 - Respect the marks
 - Dig with care

Not calling can be life threatening and costly. You can harm yourself or others, disrupt natural gas service to an entire neighborhood, and potentially be responsible for injuries, repair costs, and criminal penalties. If you ever suspect a natural gas leak, call 911 and Southwest Gas at 1-877-860-6020 immediately, whether you're our customer or not. For more information about natural gas pipeline safety, visit swgas.com/safety or call 1-877-860-6020.
